EAP RESOURCES FOR CHILDREN

Getting support for a child can be stressful. We can help.

When a child is struggling, the parents feel it too. Revive is here to help you every step of the way. Here is how services can be used for children by age group.

AGES 0-10

Parent Intervention*

Consultation with parents on child development, parenting skills, tools, socialization, and more. Referrals to counseling when appropriate.

AGES 11-13

Initial Assessment and Care Planning with Parents

Identification of coping skills and other techniques, connection to short-term counseling when appropriate, and other recommendations for parents.

AGES 14-18

Short-term Counseling and Parental Support

Identification of mental health and family resources for parents, connection to short-term counseling when appropriate.

AGES 18-26

Short-term Counseling

Short-term counseling for young adults still living at home, when appropriate, and resources for parents.

*Children under the age of ten typically require counseling services from a specialized provider with expertise in working with children, such as a play therapist. Counseling for children tends to be a long-term engagement, and costs may be incurred. Your health insurance plan often covers these costs.
